Meals on Wheels pulls in $37,000 in new grants

Viveca Lohr, Executive Director, received a grant for $15,000 to build a storage area at the Sally Griffin Senior Center at the AT&T awards lunch at the Lodge in Pebble Beach. It was one of several recent grants received for upgrading and beautification of the Center.

Of the grants received for furnishings and carpeting are Loralie Irvine Foundation ($2500), Yount Trust ($5888), and the Grover Hermann Foundation of the Community Foundation for Monterey County ($7500). A grant of $7000 from the City of Pacific Grove will upgrade the facilities sound system and two sponsorships in the Investment in Independence Program.

Scripps Howard ($1000) and the Auxiliary of Meals on Wheels of the Monterey Peninsula ($2000) funds will be used to retrofit an area in the administrative office.

Meals on Wheels has expanded its services to include congregate meals throughout the Peninsula and is continually adding new activities at the center in addition to the home delivered meal program for which it is named.

Meals on Wheels Sally Griffin Senior Center is open to the public seven days a week. Monday through Friday the Center is the site for seniors to come to enjoy the many diverse classes, crafts, dancing, exercise, health maintenance and social activities.

The facility is used by community groups, school groups and Chapman College. It is available on weekends for special events, weddings or other activities.

Proud parents joined together to present displays of the work of local 4-H participants at Rosie's Cracker Barrel in Carmel Valley.

$1,000 reward offered for man charged with cocaine sales

Crime Stoppers of Monterey County is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of Christopher (aka "Chris" Brendan Durney. A warrant has been issued for his arrest on charges of sale of marijuana and sale of cocaine during July and August 1992.

Durney was identified as a suspect in an undercover investigation of narcotics traffickers in the Carmel Valley area. He sold both cocaine and marijuana to an undercover narcotics officer.

The suspect is a white male adult, 31 years old, 5'5", 155 pounds, medium build with brown curly hair and brown eyes.

Anyone with knowledge about the suspect or any other information leading to an arrest is urged to call 1-800-499-CRIME.

Crime Stoppers is a volunteer organization established to assist law enforcement agencies by urging citizens to come forward with knowledge of crimes and/or criminals.

Two events took place this last weekend. Both were concerned with the quality and impact of actions on our environment.

The 4-H open house held at Rosie's Cracker Barrel focused on providing a learning environment for young people ages 9 to 19. Leaders Brenda Reese, Eileen Whistler, Linda Ferrachi, Cathleen Tegtmeier, Mary Martin, Cara Nason, Natali Gardiner and Anna Cocks assisted the 4-H members in a presentation explaining some of the group projects that won ribbons at local fairs.

Proudly escorting family and guests through the exhibits were Colby Grewell, Justin McChesney, Ben Gardiner, Margaret Rose Lopez, Christopher Scardina, and Natalie and Emily Martin.

During the 4-H pledge some members demonstrated their mastery of sign language. Among those participating were Caitlyn Becker, Alana Semmel, Bryon Gardiner, Laurel Nason, Jessica Hitchcock and Triccia Ringer.

More information about the program and location of chapters can be obtained by calling the Monterey County 4-H Extension at 759-7360.

Areas of interests in 4-H include more than animals and farming. They also include engineering, natural science, home economics, social science, leisure and recreation.

To me, any action that promotes learning and a sense of accomplishment for young people leads to a healthier family environment.

Meeting at the Holman Ranch, Citizens for Alternate Water Solutions (CAWS) held a fundraising benefit that gives them money needed to publicize and educate Monterey County voters about the actual costs involved in the proposed New Los Padres Dam project and its effects on the ecology of our area.

Present were John Polomo Brennan, chair of CAWS along with members Vicki Scardina, Paul Levine, Ira Friedman, Cathleen Tegtmeier, Walter Georis, Judy Webb, Donna Rose, Keith Vandervere, Warren Wolfe, Bobbie Chappell, Sean Flavin, Sophia Roberts and Susan Brennan.

Charity Crane chaired the fund-raiser. Pat Clark, Steve Goodman and Warren John Wolfe of the Cachagua Playboys Band performed Cajun and Zydeco music. For those of you, like me, who have never heard of Zydeco it means in Cajun language "snap beans, no salt." Good Louisiana dancing music.

Some of the many local artists contributing to the silent auction were Johnny Apadaca, Georgene Rugg Cervelli, Robin Rosenzweig, Lynn Larson, Kira Corser, Eric Hitchcock, Marie-Louise Rouff, Jani Swansen, Barbara Dawson, Robin Mahoney, and Annette Corcoran.

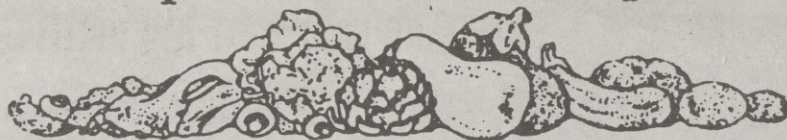

Providing the food were Debbie Heron, Jay Throckmorton, Charity Crane, Ellen Ladd, Jeffery Rey, Sol, and Mike Ricketts. Wines were donated by local vineyards.

Fred Nason, life long resident of Cachagua, member of a pioneer ranching family, and an Esselen Indian descendant listened with Holman Ranch Site Manager Judy Highly while one speaker pointed out that, in his experience, "any environmental gain is temporary while any environmental loss tends to be permanent."

Personal thoughts. The dam project is being called a "long term solution". My understanding is that means in real time, 20 to 30 years. Many American Indian tribes evaluated an environmental project from the perspective of what it will mean to the next seven generations. Cost consideration aside, I have a problem passing on a 20 to 30 year "solution".

It is flu shot time for adults and seniors

Flu season is just around the corner and Monterey County health officials are encouraging people 60 years and older to take advantage of low cost flu shot clinics this fall to protect themselves against influenza this winter. Dr. Robert Melton, Monterey County's Director of Health, said annual flu shots are important for seniors because older people are more likely than others to become seriously ill if they do get the flu.

Because influenza viruses weaken the body, older victims become more susceptible to other infections. "With aging, disease fighting ability slows down, and you don't snap back after 3-4 days of flu like you did when you were younger. Without a flu shot, a serious case of flu can develop quickly and worsen rapidly," Dr. Melton warned.

The first Health Department flu shot clinic will be held on October 2, and clinics will continue to be offered through October 16 at various sites. According to the U.S. Center for Disease Control and Prevention, the ideal time to receive influenza vaccine is mid-October through mid-November.

The 1995-96 influenza vaccine contains antigens to provide protection against three strains of influenza viruses, A/Johannesburg/94, A/Texas/91, and B/Beijing/93. The vaccine used in this year's flu shots is designed to protect both seniors and others at high risk, including younger adults or children with certain chronic diseases.

Seniors also may get a pneumococcal pneumonia immunization and a tetanus-diphtheria booster at the flu shot clinics. The pneumococcal vaccine is given just once in a lifetime and is recommended for all persons age 60 years and older who have not already had one. Tetanus-diphtheria boosters are needed by all adults every 10 years.

Although the Health Department charges a $5 fee per shot to help cover the administrative costs of giving the immunizations, no one will be denied the vaccine because of an inability to pay. For seniors 65 and older, Medicare is accepted. Younger adults with heart, lung and other chronic health conditions that require regular visits to the doctor are also eligible for influenza vaccine. If in doubt regarding the need for vaccine, such younger persons should call the Health Department for guidance.

Call the department for dates and locations of the clinics at 755-4500.

"Gone are the days when every composting facility regardless of size and risk to the environment will undergo full regulatory processes that can waste time and money," said Daniel G. Pennington, Chairman of the Board.

"Our new regulatory tiered program will instead allow for a permit and application review process commensurate with the level of threat posed to the public health, safety and the environment."

The compost regulations are an element in the Board's new regulatory tiered program, and the result of a year long effort which combined the expertise of local government, industry and environmental groups. The regulations replace a one-size-fits-all regulation program which required all solid waste facilities to undergo full permitting procedures.

The compost facility regulations require that operations processing food material, mixed solid waste, sewage sludge and green waste will undergo various levels of regulation. For example, small facilities would only need to notify the Board and certify they are conforming with Board adopted health and safety standards. Other types of operations would be required to register with the Board and submit more detailed information, while large scale operations would undergo partial or full permitting by the Board.

Currently in California, more than 3.5 million tons of organics are being composted by an estimated 300 companies, according to figures compiled by the California Organics Recycling Council. During the next two years, the industry is expected to double, as 10 million tons of organic recyclables -- yardwaste and agricultural waste -- become available for composting.

Perkins pleads "no contest" to embezzlement of part of $300,000 loss

Floyd "Skip" Ray Perkins, the former controller of the Pacific Grove Asilomar Operating Corporation, pled no contest to the charge of embezzlement of funds from the Asilomar Operating Corporation during the fiscal year of 1992-1993. In addition, he admitted the enhancement of taking in excess of $50,000.

The case against Mr. Perkins was the result of a 25 month long investigation involving the Pacific Grove Police Department, the State Controller's Audit Division, the Department of Parks and Recreation, the Attorney General's office of the State of California and the Monterey County District Attorney's office.

Mr. Perkins admitted taking in excess of $50,000 by a scheme of involving the taking of case from the daily deposits by a substitution of Asilomar checks drawn on Asilomar's general bank account and deposited back to the Asilomar Corporation during the fiscal year 1992-1993. The estimated loss in fiscal year 92-93 was $133,000. The amount of loss from 1988-1992 is estimated by the State Controller's office to be approximately $300,000.

Packards give to cause senior and youth interaction

Support from the David and Lucile Packard Foundation will enable OMBUDSMAN for Long-Term Care to effectively support their new "Little OmBUDDIES" program -- designed to create on-going relationships between Monterey County young people and seniors living in long-term care facilities.

The $25,000 grant will help OmBUDDIES provide the training and support for young volunteers (from Boys and Girls Clubs and other youth groups) to take cultural programming into long-term care facilities through weekly, one-on-one visits with the residents.

OMBUDSMAN is a private, nonprofit agency that is mandated to protect and enhance the lives of people living in nursing and board & care homes. It is a volunteer based local organization. For more information call 758-4011 or 899-4066.

VALLEY VOICE

Fran Farina

There is a new disease in our community. It's infecting everyone I know. For lack of a better word, I shall refer to it as the "meeting" disease.

I played phone tag with a friend for four days before we were able to link up with each other. Why? Because we were each at a series of meetings.

Business people are suffering from the same malady. Whether they're trying to follow what government is doing (or not doing -- depending on your perspective), attending seminars on business enhancement, or volunteering time in community service, they aren't at their offices either.

As for government officials, they spend most of their time in meetings.

The problem with meetings is that someone has to first arrange one, then notify potential participants, facilitate the actual event, and finish with follow-ups like minutes or thank you notes.

I'm at the point where I feel withdrawal symptoms if I don't have at least two meetings on the calendar each day.

Was it always this way? Not that I can remember.

Everyone I know, both in and out of government, is working longer and harder. While computers, fax machines and e-mail can be helpful, they also can wear you down.

As an example, when I practiced law in Miami, it was typical to work on a pleading doing research and writing, often for days. The joy came when the document was dropped in the mailbox. You knew it would be at least a week before you'd have to look at that file again.

Now, a response can be received via fax within a day assuming, of course, that the attorney is not in court, conference or attending a meeting.

Along with the meetings come mountains of paper. Some need to be kept. That requires opening files so that you can retrieve the material if you want to.

I now have over 150 active files of matters just from the Water District. My desk drawers are bulging with files associated with different water problems. Perhaps that's one of the reasons I chose not to run for re-election. My house as well as my life is being consumed by paper.

I'm looking forward to cleaning out my desk. In the law practice, when you concluded a case, the file was placed in the "deads". One really should say the "inactives" but there was genuine relish to dictate to one's secretary, "Put the Smith file in the deads".

As for the meetings, I expect they will continue at a fairly frantic pace. If anyone knows when they reached the epidemic stage, give me a call. I think it's important to document events such as these. After all, they change our lives. Whether it's for the better remains to be seen.

Must be off. There's another meeting to attend.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

"Nobody for President?" Well, why not? I wrote to Senator Bradley, who is leaving Congress, mainly in disgust, which I agree with. Offered to help him try for the White House. I put a Bradley for President sign on my truck. Didn't hear from him, so I put Carter's name on it, but I don't think he'd try for it, so I'm changing it to "Nobody for President", and I think he'll get a lot of votes. ("Nobody", not Carter.)

Nobody will know who this guy, "Nobody" is, whether he's for or against abortions, affirmative action, unlimited immigration, foreign aid, marijuana, unwed mothers, the $2 billion per year increase (to $30 billion) for the CIA, subsidies for tobacco farmers, or whether he ever "lusted" for anybody he wasn't engaged to marry.

If we find out who he is, he'll have to give the right answer to every voter who asks him a question, which would, of course, be impossible, and he'd have to just drop out of the race.

Meanwhile, General Powell is frightening the bejabbers out of the Republicans, because he might turn out to be either a Democrat, or a Republican, or neither, when election time arrives. The Republicans would like to own him, as a candidate, provided he'd throw his principles out the window, but Powell has higher standards than that, so he's up for grabs as a Democrat, and I don't think he'd go 100 percent along with them, either, so maybe he'll be the "Nobody" on my sign.

I'd not only vote for him, I'd encourage him to set up a Third Party, maybe called the America Party, dedicated to placing our country's future at the top of the priority list, instead of at the bottom.

With a good running mate selection, I don't think he'd need a standard size, multi-million dollar campaign chest.

LETTERS to the Editor

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Certainly water is the most talked about topic of today. However the vote turns out on November 7, water will be supplied, the question is how?

If the vote is positive, the District will probably build the dam. It will entail adding to the staff to comply with all 47 conditions included with the permit. The conditions include having to truck fish every year around the dam and relocating 20 red-legged frogs to another habitat.

If the vote is negative, the responsibility for providing water will be placed where it should be: on the shoulders of Cal-Am Water Co. They are required by law to provide water to its franchise area. And they will. The company will have to determine whether to utilize the cheaper alternatives I mentioned in my last letter or build the dam themselves.

The only way we will know in which manner Cal-Am will provide water is for the vote on the dam to be turned down. We will probably get water quicker with a no vote, because a yes vote will see a flood of lawsuits which will delay it for many years, as they have in Oregon and Washington State.

Our advantages if Cal-Am saw fit to construct the dam are: we will not have to pay millions of dollars to purchase their present dam and surrounding properties; the county will receive $1 million per year in property taxes to be divided between schools and other jurisdictions; Cal-Am can build it cheaper because they can amortize it over 80-100 years; they won't have to increase staff as much as the water District will because they already have experienced personnel operating two dams now; the cost to consumers will be less because Cal-Am is regulated by the Public Utilities Commission who regulates how much profit they can make, (the District has no controls), and we can dissolve the District because it will no longer be needed, thereby saving millions of dollars every year which can be applied to Cal-Am's profits.

Cal-Am strongly supports the taxpayers building the dam. That is understandable. The District would then have to operate it and comply with all 47 conditions. Therefore it is not believed that Cal-Am will build the dam. It will find other sources which are less expensive, quicker and not have to answer to the State Department of Fish and Game and other environmental protection agencies.

The bottom line with the voters is: do they want to subsidize fish, the Carmel River environment, developers and other special interests. If so, vote yes. If the voters would prefer to have water available quicker, with less hassle and

As I remember my childhood Bible Stories, the good Pharaohs put aside grain from abundant harvests to dole out during drought years. Bad Pharaohs didn't do that. I bet good Pharaohs ranked pretty low in the polls and bad Pharaohs were more popular, at least until the next drought. The schedule for droughts was seven dry years followed by seven wet years. That's probably why we have four year terms for our presidents.

A bad Pharaoh today could quit ahead at the end of his term and leave the drought problem to someone else.

There was something in all the stories about "viziers", like today's "majority leaders". The average of wet year harvests and dry year harvests is an attractive amount of grain. Consume the cyclical average in the wet years, which should leave the average amount to consume in the dry years. Wrong, as it turned out. City planners handed out building permits based on the number of residents an average harvest would support. So Pharaoh's farmers moved to the new developments and learned a trade in town. When the drought hit, it was a disaster. That may be why our majority leaders have two year terms.

Our House of Representatives tax panel proposes that we cut the taxes companies would pay to remove pension assets from employee pension plans. This has been a good year for stocks and bonds in pension plans, resulting in numbers which show such plans overfunded by $30 billion to $40 billion. Our viziers think company managers should withdraw these excess assets and apply them to new capital items to promote growth and profits. But this has been a "wet" year for pension assets; when the markets drop and asset values shrink, pensions may prove not to be overfunded. If companies spend this year's excess, a shortfall later on will have to be made up by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, which insures the pension system. And who says corporate managers will invest in systems which require more employees ... and more contributions to pension plans?

Just as the viziers of old arranged for more people to live in town with fewer farmers to feed them, so our Congress may be arranging for more people to retire with fewer resources to sustain them. A prudent person would put a few grains aside, just in case.

#2 In a Series on How To Be Secure In Insecure Times

THIS IS A GOOD TIME TO SELL!

by Rand Smith

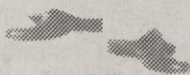

We've been hearing a lot about how it's a buyer's market in real estate. There's been a lot of gloom and doom talk and I think it's time to look at the positive aspects of the market.

I'd like to talk about why a buyer's market is good for sellers.

You've heard the rumor: Now's a bad time to try to sell your home, because you'll have to take less for it. Here's the fact: Higher priced homes in Monterey County are not appreciating as fast as they once were, and that's putting them in reach of many more buyers. If your home is in this category and you want to sell, we may have more rather than fewer prospective buyers.

And don't overlook the silver lining in today's real estate market. Interest rates are as low as they've been for years (with the exception of last year). That helps the buyer purchase your home. Many people who were unable to afford a home are now able to buy, thanks to low interest rates, special loan programs and high availability. And that's good for buyers and sellers.

Remember, if you want to sell your home, you are also a buyer ... of your next home. The buyer's market can work for you, helping to move you into a more spacious home.

By selling your present home now, you can greet the end of the recession living in a larger home with amenities you've always wanted.

REAL ESTATE REPORT

Carol Jensen Root

The following real estate sales were reported for the period of September 3, 1995 through September 9, 1995:

Pebble Beach

No sales

Carmel

Michael Ricketts sold to Richard and Helen Sippel a property on Perry Newberry on September 4, 1995 for $165,000.

Amanda Hopkins sold to Douglas Mack a property on 1st Avenue on September 5, 1995 for $210,000.

Susan Simmons sold to Ralph White a property on Lincoln Street on September 5, 1995 for $310,000.

William and Judith Reichardt sold to William and Pat Wright Jr. 23850 Venadis Court on September 6, 1995 for $395,000.

Barbara Schafer sold to Stuart and Judith McKee a property on Monte Verde Street on September 6, 1995 for $585,000.

John Jamison sold to Allen Davidson a property on Casanova Street on September 6, 1995 for $300,000.

Carmel Valley

Nancy Heaslett sold to Linda Piper 198 Laurel Drive on September 4, 1995 for $540,000.

Marvin Cron sold to William and Ann Rudd a property on Esquiline Road on September 5, 1995 for $220,000.

Curtis Colton sold to John Mutty 25295 Pine Hills Drive on September 6, 1995 for $480,000.

The Foreclosure Process

It is an unfortunate commentary, but when economic activity declines and housing activity decreases more real property enters the foreclosure process. High interest rates and creative financing arrangements are also contributing factors.

When prices are rapidly accelerating during a real estate "bonanza", many people go to any lengths available to get into the market through investments in vacation homes, rental housing and "trading up" to more expensive properties. In some cases, this results in the taking on of high interest rate payments and second, third and even fourth deeds of trust. Many buyers anticipate that interest rates will drop and home prices will continue to escalate. Neither may occur, and borrowers may be faced with large "balloon" payments becoming due. When payments cannot be met, the foreclosure process looms on the horizon.

In the foreclosure process, one thing should be kept in mind: as a general rule, a lender would rather receive payments than receive a home due to a foreclosure. Lenders are not in the business of selling real estate and will often try to accommodate property owners who are having payment problems. The best plan is to contact the lender before payment problems arise. If monthly payments are too hefty, it may be that a lender will be able to make some alternative payment arrangements until the owner's financial situation improves.

Let's say, however, that a property owner has missed payments and has not made any alternate arrangements with the lender. In this case, the lender may decide to begin the foreclosure process. Under such circumstances, the lender, whether a bank, savings and loan or private party, will request that the trustee, often a title company, file a notice of default with the county recorder's office. A copy of this notice is mailed to the property owner.

If the default is due to a balloon payment not being made when due, the lender can require a full payment on the entire outstanding loan as the only way to cure the default. If the default is not cured, the lender may direct the trustee to sell the property at a public sale.

In cases of a public sale, a notice of sale must be published in a local newspaper and posted in a public place, usually the courthouse, for three consecutive weeks. Once the notice of sale has been recorded, the property owner has until 5 days prior to the published sale date to bring the loan current. If the owner cures the default by making up the payments, the deed of trust will be reinstated and regular monthly payments will continue as before. After this time, it may still be possible for the property owner to work out a postponement on the sale with the lender. However, if no postponement is reached, the property goes "on the block". At the sale, buyers must pay the amount of their bid in cash, cashier's check or other instrument acceptable to the trustee. A lender may "credit bid" up to the amount of the obligation being foreclosed upon.

With the recent attention given to foreclosure, there also has been corresponding interest in buying foreclosed properties. However, caveat emptor: buyer beware. Foreclosed properties are very likely to be burdened with overdue taxes, liens and clouded titles. A buyer should do his homework and ask a local title company for information concerning these outstanding liens and encumbrances. Title insurance may or may be not available following a foreclosure sale and various exceptions may be included in any title insurance policy issued to a buyer of a foreclosed property.

Your local title company will be happy to provide additional information.
